

Carbon Pricing and Trade: What Future?

Friday 11 November, 13.30–14.30
Auditorium B, We Mean Business Pavilion
Blue Zone

The use of carbon pricing instruments is growing worldwide. So too, is interest in border carbon adjustments (BCAs), to ease industry competitiveness concerns. This reflects a growing need to improve dialogue between trade and climate governance forums. Many climate-trade discussions are underway, but there are few systemic or formalised processes. Would this be needed, and how can we ensure that trade policy is put at the service of accelerated climate action?

Panellists

Andrei Marcu

Executive Director

European Roundtable on Climate Change,
Trade and Sustainable Transition (ERCST)

Anne Van Ysendyck

Vice President, Head of Government
Affairs and Environment,
ArcelorMittal Europe

Marion Jansen

Director, Trade and Agriculture,
OECD

Peter Govindasamy

Deputy Director, Singapore Ministry of Trade and Industry and Dean of the Ministry of Trade and Industry Academy

Michael Mehling

Deputy Director, Center for Energy and Environmental Policy Research (CEEPR)

Joachim Monkelbaan

Climate Trade Lead,
World Economic Forum